

Application process too burdensome

Anonymous Story

I'm on federal disability, but provincial disability is too inaccessible due to my disability/red tape. My co-op has evicted me, legally, because of "policy" even though I participate, pay rent on time, etc. My disabilities are unofficial or don't qualify for community housing. Vacancy is less than 1%, because housing is not first-come first-served, and overburdened. The application process is prohibitive with my disabilities. I can't face moving let alone try to find housing when I live on less than $900 per month. I am in extended burnout due to some of my disabilities. No family or friends. I will be living on the streets in 7 months. I am 52.